The Secret Policemans Ball Presents Book Preview

Back in the day, if you wanted to raise money you stood on street corner with a tin and a smile. That is until Mr. John Cleese rounded up a few friends in 1976 for Amnesty International's first fundraising show, "A Poke In The Eye (With A Sharp Stick)." Since then, Amnesty has produced a dozen Secret Policeman shows, which culminated this year with a breathtaking line-up at New York's Radio City Hall. This beautifully designed anniversary anthology brings together the greatest acts from the twelve shows: scripts of the Dead Parrot Sketch; lyrics to Michael Palin's "I'm a Lumberjack"; Peter Cook's peerless E.L. Wisty monologues; Rowan Atkinson's schoolmaster's roll-call and on through to the latest generation led by Eddie Izzard, Dylan Moran, Frank Skinner, Alan Carr, and Russell Brand. These celebrated comedy routines are accompanied by beautiful photography, specially commissioned introductions, and insightful interviews from the stars involved. It is a fitting tribute to a remarkable comedy institution.
