With the unique ability to feel at home wherever she find herself, Betty Kilgour also shares the sense of home with friends and family as they pause with her life's journey. Beginning at Crocus Coulee, Betty this time offers us anecdotes of friends, who are far from home, finding themselves as little cut off from their familiar surroundings because the Kilgours opened house and farm to them. She then takes us on another trip to East Africa, where she shares the hearths of long-time friends in Dar and Sumbawanga. And finally, we follow Betty and Bill on their long-awaited trip to Ireland, where the past and present come together.
